Your curriculum vitae has been reviewed by the USSR-EE division of the Office of Political Analysis. There is no current interest in having you conduct contract research for the division. Your credentials will be kept on file should new items be added to the research agenda.

My own recommendation to you is that you forward a specific proposal describing work that you would like to do. I believe that good ideas spark more interest than good credentials.

Sincerely,

Dear [redacted]

Pursuing our telephone conversation today, I am enclosing my resume and bibliography.

As I explained to you, I would be interested in doing contract work for you, particularly regarding the Soviet Union and eastern Europe, their foreign relations, and the general area of East-West relations--subjects of my historical research and teaching, most recently at [redacted]

I would be pleased to meet with you to discuss further details.

Sincerely yours,
